Menu

The Clock Inn is a 16th Century thatched free house nestling amongst the many thatched and picturesque houses in the attractive village of Chideock, West Dorset. Chideock is on the ancient coaching route from Exeter to London, now the A35.

Following a total loss fire on Easter Monday 2015, The Clock was totally rebuilt in 466 days and whilst a lot of the pub is new there has also been some fantastic workmanship used to reinstate some of the old timber. There are many areas where the saved wood has been used to great effect and this can be seen around the building and predominantly on the new bar.

Carefully selected real ales, local ciders and guest beers are available as well as a comprehensive wine and spirit selection. There is a full menu for all occasions, set menus for parties, a take-away menu, a children's menu and Sunday roasts.

Please feel free to admire our collection of clocks or select a book from our charity bookshelves.

We trust that you enjoy our hospitality and hope to see you again soon.
